

Category

Consulting

Consulting Brand Authority & Market Positioning Playbook

Building a firm-level market position specific enough that prospects can articulate why they'd choose you

- Executive
- Intermediate
- Template Included

- Mithun A. Sridharan
- 06 August 2019
- 4 minute(s)

Overview

A framework for building consulting firm brand authority and market positioning specific enough that prospects and referral sources can clearly articulate what the firm is distinctively known for — rather than generic positioning language that could describe any competent firm in the category.

How is this different from the firm-level Thought Leadership &

Content Marketing for Consultants Playbook? That playbook covers content marketing execution broadly. This one is specifically about the underlying positioning strategy — what the firm is distinctively known for — that content marketing and other brand activities should express consistently, not the content tactics themselves.

How do you test whether your current positioning is actually specific enough? Ask current clients and referral sources to describe, in their own words, what the firm is known for — if the answers are generic or inconsistent across people, the positioning likely isn't specific enough to be genuinely differentiating.

```
{ "@context": "https://schema.org", "@type": "FAQPage", "mainEntity": [ { "@type": "Question", "name": "How is this different from the firm-level Thought Leadership &", "acceptedAnswer": { "@type": "Answer", "text": "Content Marketing for Consultants Playbook?\nThat playbook covers content marketing execution broadly. This one is\nspecifically about the underlying positioning strategy — what the firm\nis distinctively known for — that content marketing and other brand\nactivities should express consistently, not the content tactics\nthemselves." } }, { "@type": "Question", "name": "How do you test whether your current positioning is actually", "acceptedAnswer": { "@type": "Answer", "text": "specific enough?\nAsk current clients and referral sources to describe, in their own\nwords, what the firm is known for — if the answers are generic or\ninconsistent across people, the positioning likely isn't specific\nenough to be genuinely differentiating." }
```

```
} ] }
```

Subscriber access

Unlock this playbook

This playbook — including every framework, template, and step-by-step section — is available free to Think Insights subscribers. Enter your email to unlock it instantly and get our weekly insights newsletter. No account needed, and access is remembered on this device.

First Name

Last Name

Email

Country

I agree to data processing in accordance with GDPR

Leave this field blank

References

Related playbooks

Consulting

Advisory-Led Consulting Sales Playbook

A framework for consulting business development that treats the sales conversation itself as genuine advisory work — offering real insight and value before any

- Practitioner
- Intermediate
- Template Included

Read playbook

Consulting

End-to-End Consulting Engagement (From Pitch to Delivery)

A five-phase spine for running consulting engagements end to end — pitch, contract, mobilize, deliver, and close — with the templates and governance rhythm to k

- Practitioner
- Intermediate

Read playbook

Consulting

Consulting Talent Pyramid & Career Progression Playbook

A framework for designing consulting firm career progression — goals, feedback cadence, and promotion readiness criteria — specific and consistent enough that c

- Executive
- Intermediate
- Template Included

Read playbook

Talk to us about brand positioning

Tags

- Brand Authority
- Market Positioning
- Consulting Marketing

Author

Mithun A. Sridharan

I'm Mithun A. Sridharan, Founder of this website - Think Insights - on Strategy, Management Consulting, Leadership, Digital Transformation, and Data Literacy. Follow me on social media or connect with me on LinkedIn for updates.